

Dr. John P. CHAN

Former Dean of Science (1972-1975)

Hong Kong Baptist College

(Renamed as Hong Kong Baptist University)

Words cannot adequately describe my pride and my congratulations on the 50th Golden Jubilee Anniversary. From the humble beginnings when we first shared facilities at the Pui Ching Middle School until today, the struggles and successes of the Science Faculty have been very significant. I would like to acknowledge the support of my wife, Deanna, whose encouragement and prayers sustained me during my tenure. Second the great fellow teachers such as M. H. Mok, William Choy, the late Jerry Barrett and many others also were significant. Finally the hard working students, especially those whose interest in electro-chemistry and electro-plating. Third, those scientists such as Professor Francis Ree of Livermore Labs and Professor Cao Lili of the Chemistry Department of Tsing Hua University who co-operated and co-authored research work with me.

The recent growing co-operation between HKBU and those counter-part Universities in China and Taiwan have also been remarkable. The achievements of the HKBU Science Faculty are a reflection of the dedication of its teachers, administrators and the Hong Kong community.
